HABITAT for HUMANITY

“Building with Books”

Habitat families have a strong desire to make their lives successful. They show this with their commitment to building their homes. A nice home and the support of Habitat can be a major help up to a better life.

Another key to success for these families, especially the children, is the family’s commitment to education. To foster this, “Building with Books” gives each family a bookcase made by a local woodworker and fills the bookcase with a basic library appropriate for the ages and interests of the family. Each bookcase holds some reference books - a dictionary, an atlas, a cookbook, a health book – and some books just for pleasure reading such as classic nursery rhymes, fairy tales, and fables. Also included is information on obtaining a library card.

Barnes and Noble bookstore has generously supported this project, but new sponsors and donors are always needed and greatly appreciated so that more books can be purchased. Used books in good condition are also welcome.
